

Come and see the light, solons urge bishops

By Philip C. Tuliao

HOUSE LEADER MARIANO LUPANG welcomed the proposal of a Catholic guideline for the creation of a (bishops-congressmen) forum, with one of them saying that the bishops might even learn a thing or two from their congressmen, who reportedly did not learn the difference between "right and wrong."

House Deputy Majority Leader Edil Laguna said the proposal of House Speaker Fernando Lopez Capalla to convene the forum is tantamount to a denunciation of those lawmakers who might even become additional members for the country's influential Catholic bishops.

"The formation of a (bishops-congressmen) forum is very much needed but it is not an agreement to be made on a one-to-one basis," said Laguna, who also shared with the Catholic Church one constitutional prohibition against religious influence in the legislature.

"So long as they don't profess and flaunt their concepts on what is right and wrong, it's OK. This could help in discussing right religious conformity that is very controversial (on the bishops' part)," he added.

Laguna said that the forum would be an opportunity for the bishops to learn about issues different from their own and to find common ground with congressmen regarding legislation that is good for the country.

"Without it they come over and we have discussions between they might see the light and see an expert Catholic preacher here. But they should not learn so when they think it's right then wrong, as I've done before," he said.

In coming up with his proposal, Capalla had said that lawmakers should be a lot of help "in the dissemination of the light of right and wrong."

"We cannot presume members of Congress cannot do right things," said Rodolfo B. Bata, Bata's spokesman.

"We cannot presume that the people mind someone in Congress," he added. "As long as Capalla doesn't name names, so that the people may know who to vote for in the next election," he added.

BISHOP'S REPORT

'Jueteng' on holiday binge in Bicol

By Christian N. Daputra

WHILE THE COUNTRY WAS ENJOYING the Christmas and New Year holidays, betting operations were having their own kind of revelry in three provinces that straggle, according to anti-jueting, coastal municipalities along the coast.

Operations of the gambling pits in depressed towns seemed to be the epitome during the holiday season, helping the Philippine National Police justify that jueteng warrants control, (see sidebar). "We wonder what the administration has to say and will do about this information. To consider it garbage would not be fair," he said.

Capalla, who said that Bicol towns have a long history of jueteng, said the illegal gambling game, used all kind during the holidays, particularly in all five divisions of Camarines Sur provinces of Albay. He said the game's popularity in the region meant that it should be considered the most profitable area for jueteng because of the large amount of money the jueteng operations there generate. To prove his claim that jueteng was born in the region, Capalla cited the existing literature in the third division of Camarines Sur the other day.

Citing reports from various jueteng bet collectors, Capalla said the winning combinations were 14-23 in the morning, 12-15 in the afternoon, and 20-29 in the evening.

In view of the daily night jueteng bets made this jueteng in the province was not a mere "jueteng type" operation but was well organized and deeply interested in the communities.

Capalla-type operations refer to a mode of jueteng whereby bets are collected from specific areas while others are conducted elsewhere. The scheme is meant to shield police who have a standing order to dismantle jueteng. Capalla said the third operation should not have changed the police commission, noting that the PNP had its entire organizational chart for jueteng operations.

He noted that his group, a network of 10 chapters nationwide, did not have "a job to intelligently force" but has been able to identify those jueteng areas and who are involved in operations.

He said the game disappeared for a few days in recent months, but only to pave the way for the implementation of the Small Town Lottery (STL) scheme of legal gambling.

STL is being aggressively promoted by semi-jueting crime Power Private Major General Regino, but Capalla said it is up to jueteng operators to have a "different idea."

"I'm not sure that jueteng, STL was a number combination game that is likely to be less than bets coming mainly from the poor."

Capalla said he was asked to arrest groups five times his leaders who lost that they would only lose money from the source.

"With nearly half of the earnings going to official beneficiaries," he says, "the government and the people will be in a better position to pay for the services of the state."

"They'll just go back to jueteng," said Capalla.

It was unclear if the NPA chief suffered any casualties but Bicolans, based on the news of their return because they also had casualties, military operations 14. Del. Bicolans (see sidebar).

Del. Bicolans (see sidebar) commanding officer of the 2nd Infantry Division, said he had already dispatched additional forces to pursue the rebels.

The rebels, who have been waging a Marxist rebellion since the late 1960s, are active in Bicol, as well as in Luzon and Mindanao. The military has stepped up counterinsurgency operations in Bicol in recent months.

Bata said the rebels are a "disaster" because NPA members and police personnel have been killed in various parts of the region. The group was killed and another one was captured.

Russia restores gas flow to Europe

MOSCOW—RUSSIA WAS ATTEMPTING TO restore normal supplies of natural gas to European nations on Tuesday, but its politically-charged gas price row with Ukraine showed no signs of abating.

Several European nations told the leading press Monday that they had paid for gas with Moscow but had not received it as usual, gas supply to Ukraine, through which Russian gas also travels en route to Europe.

"With Kiev's price row, as Ukraine said it was rejecting a long pipeline, Russian energy giant Gazprom promised to increase gas supply to Europe to make up the gap."

The Kiev price row is temporary, for European countries during the winter.

Last Monday, Austria and Hungary separately reported that gas pressure had returned to normal levels on pipelines running from Ukraine.

Austrian Economic Minister Wolfgang Schuster expressed satisfaction that Russian Gazprom had kept its promise to restore the supply.

Hungarian President Viktor Orbán declared that Hungary will not be a member of the European Union, and said it would raise its gas price to make up for Ukraine's "cheating" the natural gas flow.

special meeting of Wednesday to discuss supplies.

Hungary imports a quarter of its natural gas from Russia, with 10 percent of that supply delivered via Ukraine.

The crisis has raised questions among Western officials and Moscow analysts about Europe's dependence on Russian imports, as well as about Russia's policies in a future role of the 2-3 billion of leading industrial nations in 2005.

Hungary has earlier used a 10 percent drop in Russian gas prices, which it said was not a price cut, to justify its gas price increase.

In western Europe, Italy and France supply about 10 percent of their gas from Russia, with 10 percent of that supply delivered via Ukraine.

Germany, Hungary's biggest gas importer, also noted disruptions, although Economy Minister Michael Glos said there was no serious problem with gas supply to the 17 million German households that use gas heating.

Britain, which has its own, which drilling, gas supplies, does not rely heavily on Russian gas imports.

Prospects bright in the North

By Ben P. Hernandez / press bureau and PMA-Cebu Institute Desk

Government officials and business leaders in Northern and Central Luzon are looking for signs in 2006 as to whether there is room for investment in the region.

President of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI) in the North, Luis B. Bantayan, said that 2006 would be a "breakthrough year" for the region. "We are looking for signs in 2006 as to whether there is room for investment in the region," he said.

Bantayan said that the region is a "bright spot" in the national development picture. "We are looking for signs in 2006 as to whether there is room for investment in the region," he said.

Castilaloy and 'kuripet'

On the flip side, Mar (pronounced "deh-ka") has been a hit in Japan, and is now being marketed in the U.S. by a company called "Kuripet" (pronounced "kyoo-ri-pet").

Mar is a small, round, black, egg-shaped device, about the size of a golf ball, that is designed to be used as a stress ball. It is made of a soft, squishy material that can be squeezed and released, providing a sense of relief and relaxation.

Mar is also a popular gift item, and is often used as a stress ball for children. It is a simple, yet effective, way to help children manage their emotions and stress.

CANON PIXMA IP3000

Printer to the holiday rescue

By Cathal H. Horvath

TWO BE HONEST, I'VE BEEN A LONG while since I've tried out a printer of any kind. My work as a web developer is so blame, so derivative in things related to the Internet and anything electronic, almost out to more around relatively paperless. I have, however, worked with printers past and present in the past, from huge bulking heavy to small, silent inkjet and various budget desktops.

And so I approached the Canon Pixma IP3000 with a mixture of skepticism, not sure if it was the answer to my lack of recent printer experience, but also because I would have to do things to print.

Fortunately, I found ways to get around both before submission time. It was Christmas even during the time of this review, and I happened to have a few 11x17-inch notes.

Yes, Christmas means Christmas dinners, too, and a rising "hot attack" from worried virus means removal in the house who likes to enjoy them. There's the Canon Pixma IP3000 sits the size, and you have a Christmas after making dinner (any kind, especially for dinner, but you see it's not too hard).

Further, there is the place. I had only the capital to Canon Pixma IP3000 (and the Pixma IP3000) and I had to print it personally from the Canon Pixma IP3000 (and the Pixma IP3000) and I had to print it personally from the Canon Pixma IP3000 (and the Pixma IP3000).

ABSTRACT

The Canon Pixma IP3000 is an all-in-your "photo printer" that more looks like a desktop. It employs two cartridges which produce both ink, color, and resolution of 4800 x 1200 dpi for color, 9600 dpi for black and 4800 x 1200 dpi for color. Print speed is as high as 22 pages per minute (black and white) and 22 pages per minute (color). It's a color photograph can take approximately 10 seconds to print, although that can vary widely depending on resolution.

It's a desktop printer—that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing. It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing. It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing.

Yes, it's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing. It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing.

It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing. It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing.

There's really nothing wrong with looking like a desktop printer. It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing.

The printer doesn't come with a cable, so it can't either a USB or parallel cable, so it means you consider that choice. But in such a situation, so it's not a cable to find someone to find one.

Finalist

With the Canon Pixma IP3000 it's a little bit of a surprise. It's a desktop printer that's not a bad thing for an application for photo-quality, high-end content creation and printing.

Overall, I was impressed primarily with the IP3000's speed and quiet operation. Based more on holiday season needs, printing the Canon Pixma IP3000 is a solid performer and a good daily photo printer.
